Types of Support	Projects and core funding
Fund Request Process and Response Time	AHRF grants are awarded on three approval processes. In the regular approval process, grant decisions are made twice annually—in Spring and Fall—by the Board of Directors. Applicants are informed of the funding decision shortly thereafter. The expedited approval process allows grants to be dispersed between Board meetings, and decisions are made by the Board’s Grantmaking Committee. This track is used to ensure timely responses to projects that take advantage of new openings or developments in the region. Decisions are made within one month by the Grantmaking Committee. The urgent approval process is to respond quickly to short-lived or emergency opportunities that require an immediate intervention. The Fund will only consider requests for $5,000 or below. Decisions are made within one week by the Board Chair and the Executive Director."

Description of Urgent Funding Program	The Lifeline provides emergency financial assistance to at-risk civil society organizations, so that they may continue or resume their work, and supports targeted, time-bound advocacy campaigns to respond to threats or attacks on civil society.
Geographic Areas Covered	Global
Types of Recipients	Civil society organizations (CSO), defined as a group of two or more activists, are eligible for support if it has come under attack as a result of its activities. They do not need to be officially registered but must be able to document their history of activism. The Lifeline supports a variety of CSOs, many of whom conduct advocacy, promote and protect human rights, and/or act in a watchdog capacity.
Types of Support	The Lifeline will support CSOs with small, short-term emergency grants for: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Medical expenses</li> <li>• Legal representation</li> <li>• Prison visits</li> <li>• Trial monitoring</li> <li>• Temporary relocation / Rest and Respite</li> <li>• Security Equipment replacement</li> <li>• Other urgent expenses</li> </ul> By definition, emergency assistance is finite and given to address a time-sensitive threat. An emergency may constitute the need for more than one type of assistance, i.e. medical and legal, or prison visits and equipment replacement.
Fund Request Process and Response Time	Applications may be submitted by a referrer on behalf of a CSO or by the CSO directly. Please provide as much detailed information as possible on why emergency aid is needed. The Lifeline receives applications via Martus, a secure database software, and via e-mail at enassistance@gmail.com. Lifeline strongly recommends the use of Martus or encrypted e-mail, such as PGP or Hushmail, and we can assist you in setting up secure methods for communication. Lifeline reviews all applications to determine if they meet the eligibility criteria and if the requested funds are justified. In this review, we need to verify independently the information provided by the applicant.

Description of Urgent Funding Program	The purpose of the Scholar Rescue Fund (SRF) is to support established academics, researchers or public intellectuals who are threatened in their home country or region. SRF provides temporary fellowships that allow grantees to visit another institution where they may safely continue their teaching or research activities. Preference is given to senior scholars who have extensive teaching or research experience, publications or other advanced work, and are facing immediate threats to their lives and careers. Unfortunately, due to limited resources, SRF is not able to grant fellowships to students seeking to complete a degree program.
Geographic Areas Covered	Global
Types of Recipients	Established professors, researchers and public intellectuals from any field or discipline may qualify.
Types of Support	Awards are issued for up to US $25,000, plus individual health insurance. The final fellowship award is dependent upon the location of the host institution, the cost of living, and the value of any additional contributions from the host institution or other source.
Fund Request Process and Response Time	Fellowships are approved by the SRF Selection Committee which convenes at least three times per year. Applications are reviewed for academic qualifications, the quality/potential of the candidate's work, and the urgency of threats faced. Preference is given to scholars: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• who are facing or recently fled from immediate, severe and targeted threats to their lives and/or careers in their home countries or countries of residence</li> <li>• with a Ph.D. or other highest degree in their field who have extensive teaching or research experience at a university, college or other institution of higher learning</li> <li>• who demonstrate superior academic accomplishment or promise; whose selection is likely to benefit the academic community in the home and/or host countries or region</li> </ul>
